Lesson Plan 2:
Tools and Art of Neolithic Peoples

General Description of Lesson Plan: Students will examine some of the tools and artistic expressions of early city dwellers, and consider how among the consequences of the Neolithic Revolution was the development of such implements to facilitate daily life and the opportunity to engage in artistic expression.

Created By: Howard Wright, Hinsdale South High School, Hinsdale, IL

Subject Area(s): World History, World Geography

For Grade Level(s): Grades 9 – 10

Time Needed: One class

Outcomes/Objectives:
• To examine tools of peoples of the Neolithic Revolution
• To speculate on how they were made and used
• To locate and describe other tools and art and artifacts of these first city dwellers

Materials:

Suggested Procedure(s):
In small groups, students will examine the visuals from the module that feature tools and early art works. Student groups will develop descriptions of the items, including their shape, size, materials from which they were made, etc. Then students will speculate on how the tools and art works were used. Each student will extend the lesson by consulting the Digital Image Collections from the Met and the Louvre to locate other examples of tools and art works.

Evaluation/Assessment Strategies:
- Small group descriptions of visuals and speculations on the use of these materials.
- Each student will give a brief oral presentation on the additional images they locate when they consult the additional websites.

Use these guiding questions to spur discussion in your classroom:

1. To what degree do you think Neolithic peoples created tools out of necessity?
2. To what degree do you think Neolithic peoples created art for art’s sake?
3. Describe the ways you think early tools may have been used.
